Cindy: I highly recommend you add more columns to each row in the heading to prevent possible errors in filling it out & speed up the process. The way it's set up now, you have to use the forward arrow key to get past the highlighted parts of the form heading or the highlighted part gets deleted as soon as you do a keystroke in that section. I have attached my heading with your information in it. I can tab through the whole thing without losing any of your pre-printed info while adding in the required info for the home. Works great & saves lots possible errors/omissions.

I have the form completely automated & set up with nine "floating" red check marks or red ovals. I simply click on the check mark (or oval) & drag it to the part of the question that applies & drop it there. Report looks very professional when completed & it mirrors the form that is being used today TO THE LETTER!!!

Sincerely, I am Carl Durfee-
